Howell's Sanity Hearing Begins

Warden Todhunter Conducts Taking of Testimony Today

Second Insanity Hearing Opens With Heated Word Battle

JURORS PARTICIPATE

Howell's 19-Year-Old Daughter Testifies Concerning Parents

LITTLE ROCK, March 25.—(AP)—A special jury impaneled by Warden Todhunter of the State Penitentiary today unanimously declared H. W. Howell, aged condemned slayer sane. The verdict means Howell must pay with his life, in the electric chair for the murder of Jeff Nicholson, aged inmate of the Crawford county infirmary.

LITTLE ROCK, March 25.—(AP)—Holding a nine-year-old daughter on her lap while his wife and three other children were at his side, William H. Howell, alleged triple slayer of Crawford county, today faced a second grand jury, called for passing up insanity and determining whether he shall die in the electric chair.

Taking of testimony was conducted by Warden S. L. Todhunter of the State penitentiary, was preceded by a heated word battle between appointed counsel and Warden Todhunter in which the jurors themselves joined in at one time.

Arguments of how the attorneys became so hot was not disclosed, but Warden Todhunter ordered the lawyers to be seated and to keep quiet, at this time the jurors spoke up and said the 44-year-old condemned slayer would get a fair hearing. The jurors were quickly selected and about the only questions they were asked was to whether they were scrupulous against capital punishment.

Three physicians, Dr. L. R. Brown, superintendent of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases, Dr. J. R. Trice, of Van Buren, and Dr. Samuel B. Boyce, Pulaski county coroner, testified that Howell was sane.

A 19-year-old daughter of Howell, Mrs. Madge Flynn, testified concerning the separation and divorce of her parents. Howell is under a sentence of death for the murder of Jeff Nicholson, aged inmate of the Crawford county infirmary, and is alleged to have slain superintendent Cliff Deffenbaugh of the infirmary, and his wife.

The first jury selected to pass on a sanity hearing for Howell failed to agree.

Great Interest Evident In The Star's Cooking School

City Looking Forward to Demonstrations at Saenger Next Week

"Such a tremendous interest nearly a week before the school opens, is indeed a high compliment to the women of Hope and vicinity," declared the advance man who arrived in Hope today to complete arrangements for Mrs. Leona Rusk Thrig's personal appearance as conductress of The Star's Cooking School, which opens next week, March 31, at the Saenger theatre.

"Mrs. Thrig has been highly interested in her forthcoming appearance in Hope, ever since negotiations were closed," declared the speaker, "and I am most happy to be able to report to her that nowhere else this season have we seen greater demonstration of enthusiasm and more intelligent interest in the improvement of what are already high culinary standards, than here in Hope. As a representative of Mrs. Thrig, I wish to take this opportunity of complimenting The Star's merchants, club women, and the women readers of The Star, for the vast amount of interest already stimulated, and assure you that under circumstances such as these, Mrs. Thrig's efforts will fairly surpass themselves."

Alleged Auto Thief Arrested

Bunn Pruitt Held in Custody, is Accused Stealing Car Here

After escaping from officers about a year ago following an automobile theft, Bunn Pruitt, white youth, was arrested in Mount Vernon, Texas, last Saturday and returned to the Hempstead county jail yesterday by Sheriff Dorsey McRae, and Will Porter, jailer at Washington. Pruitt was arrested by Texas authorities and taken to Arkansas, where Hempstead county officers took him into custody yesterday.

Paul Anderson, companion of Pruitt and convicted accomplice in the theft of the automobile, was given trial soon after the car was found and sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary, being released several weeks ago after he had served part of his term.

Pruitt's trial will come in the April term of court.

When Downs operated the car, it was painted a dark blue, but when found it had been painted red. The young men drove the car to Teras and later came back to Hope with it. Downs declares he first recognized it by the peculiar sound of its motor, with which he was familiar. Anderson was arrested, but Pruitt escaped. The car was stolen in February, 1929.

Negro Found Guilty of Attack on Student

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—(AP)—William Spriggins, negro, Monday was found guilty in Criminal District Court of assault with a dangerous weapon on J. Adair Lawrence, Tulane University student, in last Mardi Gras day's riot between white and negro students.

George Johnson, another negro, charged with shooting Lawrence, is awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

Bill Banker, 1929 all-American half-back, testifying, identified Spriggins as the negro who struck Lawrence over the head with an iron pipe just before Lawrence was shot in the head.

1 Killed, Another Missing After Fire

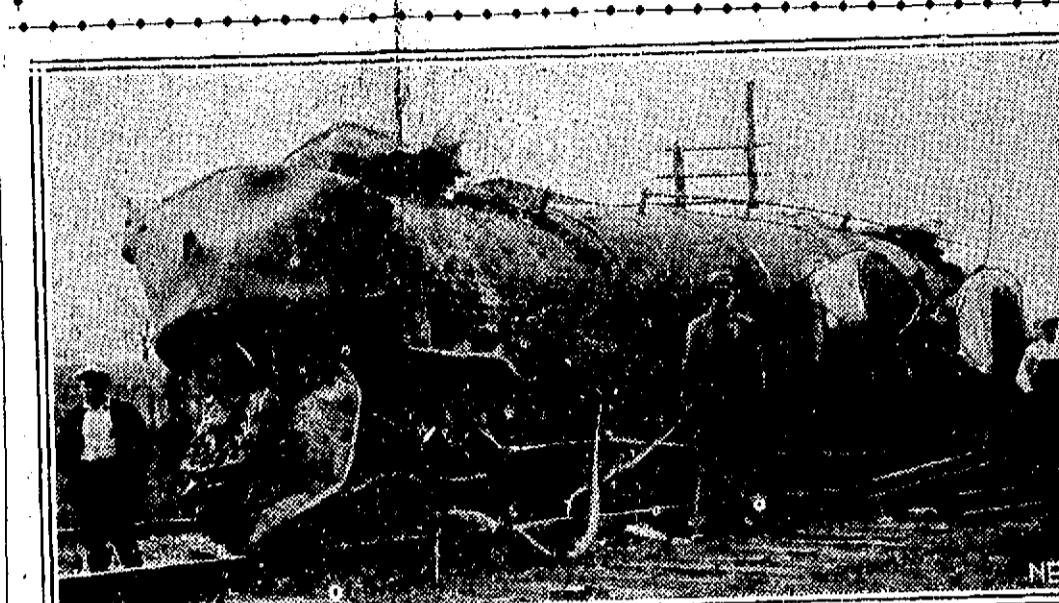

Blaze Sweeps Through Apartment; 100 Driven Into Street

GARY, Ind., March 25.—(AP)—One man was killed, another is missing and a third was injured, probably fatally, during a fire which swept through an 18-story apartment building, and driving more than 100 persons into the street during a blinding snow storm, early today.

Fire of an unknown origin, broke out in the basement and was fanned by a high wind and quickly enveloped the building. One wall collapsed carrying with it an unidentified man who was killed. Carl Smith, aged 65, is the person missing, and Carl Smith, Jr., was injured probably fatally in a futile attempt to save his father.

Young Smith, 25, carried his wife and child to safety and returned to the blazing structure to rescue his father. He entered the building and was trapped by fire forcing him to jump from the second story. In his leap he was injured severely.

Suit for Insurance of Miller Started

Jury to Decide Whether Sheriff Was Slain or Ended Own Life

LEWISVILLE, Ark., March 25.—Trial of a suit of relatives of J. W. Miller, former sheriff of Lafayette county who was found shot to death in the home of his yard here last fall seeking to collect $10,000 insurance from the Home Life Insurance company, was started in circuit court here Monday.

Testimony is expected to be completed Tuesday and, following the arguments of attorneys, the jury probably will take over the task of deciding whether Miller was slain by parties unknown or took his own life before night.

A coroner's jury, impaneled when the body was found, returned a verdict that the fatal wounds were "probably inflicted by Miller's own hands," but relatives filed the suit against the insurance company a few weeks later.

A parade of witnesses appeared Monday to tell of the finding of the former sheriff's body and facts surrounding the discovery.

A verdict in favor of the plaintiff would mean that the jurors found that Miller was slain. The case has never been presented before a Lafayette county grand jury.

Dexter Bush, recently appointed by Governor Harvey Parnell to fill the post left vacant by the death of J. W. Miller, occupied the circuit court bench for the first time.

Telephone Official is Visitor in Hope

D. T. Huie of Little Rock, commercial representative of the Southwest Bell Telephone company, is now in Hope to work for the improvement of farm telephone service around here.

Two Youths Present Air Tight Alibis in Grilling Today

LITTLE ROCK, March 25.—(AP)—Grilling of two suspects held in connection with the strange disappearance of Samuel T. Hollowell, Little Rock salesman, failed today in a determination to whether the salesman was slain, or if alive, the reason he vanished.

Both the suspects, John Davis, 16, and Worrel Guest, 20, brought here and presented almost air tight alibis. A check of the movements of the youths during the last week showed that they could not have been at the scene of the supposed slaying a few miles from Morrilton.

A third youth Carl Chalk, 19, who had already had a good alibi was not brought here for questioning. Davis, who first confessed to the slaying and named Guest as the actual killer, repudiated his confession. Another youth, instrumental in the arrest of Lloyd Wood, denied today that he got Davis drunk and offered him $200 to make a statement concerning the murder. He told officials that he obtained the confession from Davis because the youth was a distant relative and talked freely with him.

Guest was arrested recently at Bisbee and brought to Little Rock for questioning. He denied any knowledge of the affair.

Revelation that Hollowell had taken out a $10,000 insurance policy with double indemnity clause in case of violent death, shortly before he disappeared over a week ago, started an investigation today to see why he was in Morrilton when he was supposed to have been slain, when he announced he was headed for Clarendon which is in an opposite direction from Morrilton.

The man's widow has offered a reward of $200 for Hollowell dead or alive.

Body of Husband Awarded to Widow

Rights Were Recognized Over Those of A Mother

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—(AP)—Widow's rights were recognized over those of a mother in a state Court of Appeals decision here today, awarding to Mrs. Jean Barre Binol the body of her soldier-husband, which the lower court left in custody of his mother, Mrs. Leontine B. Binol.

In reversing the decision, the court said: "A loving wife whose hopes of future earthly joy are dashed upon the rocks of mortality should not be deprived of such melancholy happiness as she may be able to derive from the indulgence of her grief in retrospective contemplation and if she feels that, as the immortal Thomas Hood puts it, 'a little weeping would ease my heart,' she should not be disturbed in her sad rights."

"It is true as Lafontaine tells me, 'the miserable should be sacred.' The body was ordered removed from the family burial ground to a special plot provided by the widow.

Naval Conference May Adjourn Soon

Would Be Means of Escaping Present Impasse; Would Convene Again

LONDON, March 25.—(AP)—Adjournment of the naval conference for six months as a means of escaping the present impasse, was being considered at the conference today. The suggestion for the adjournment was attributed to foreign Prime Minister Grandi of Italy, and made to Prime Minister MacDonald. If this suggestion goes into effect it would give France and Italy an opportunity of composing their difficulties without prolonging the present suspension.

The adjournment would contemplate the re-assembling of the conference on next October 1, giving the parley an opportunity for reaching an agreement before Christmas. It was said by naval authorities today that the adjournment would not go into effect until all hope is banished for an agreement of a five power conference.

Slain Girl's Mate Confesses Theft

Youth Held as Slayer of His Bride on Wedding Night

SHREVEPORT, La., March 25.—(AP)—Roy Lawrence Delatte, 21, alleged murderer of his bride of a few hours Monday, confessed, police said, that he broke into an Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company store in Birmingham, Ala., on the night of March 16, stealing $90.

The police also said that they had arrested F. Delatte, brother of Roy, at the request of Birmingham authorities, but added that Roy had not implicated his brother. The brother was booked as a suspect, and his fingerprints and photograph were sent to Birmingham.

Roy Delatte, the officers said, admitted that he entered the store by smashing a window and then left the Alabama city with his brother and came to Shreveport.

The Delattes arrived here March 19 and the following day Roy was married to Miss Elizabeth Bowen, 21. On the couple's bridal night, the young woman was found on a bed with a bullet wound through her head. The body of her soldier-husband, which the lower court left in custody of his mother, Mrs. Leontine B. Binol.

Roy Delatte told detectives that he formerly was employed by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company in Birmingham.

Frank May Presides Over State Meeting

Frank May, county and probate clerk of Hempstead county, left Washington today for Little Rock to attend the annual convention of the Arkansas Clerks association, of which he is president.

Mr. May will call the convention to order at the Pulaski county courthouse tomorrow morning. Although only lately recovered from an operation for appendicitis, Mr. May is rapidly gaining strength, and looked forward to the state meeting Wednesday.

Petition Attacks Dumping on Road

A petition complaining against continued dumping of trash and refuse on the Spring Hill road within the city limits, is expected to come before the city council at its meeting tonight.

Property owners have frequently complained against this practice, and some time ago the city purchased a 40-acre tract back of the Southwest Arkansas Fair park as a city dump. This has failed to stop dumping along the Spring Hill road, which is marred by various trash piles, according to the petitioners.

Car Upset With School Children

Five Are Slightly Injured in Wreck on South Main Street

Miss Katherine Briant, high school student swerved the automobile she was driving, and overturned late yesterday afternoon on South Main street. Miss Briant received a cut on her head which required several stitches, and suffered other cuts and bruises.

Four other high school students, Ralph Moser, owner of the car, Miss Dale Russell, Miss Evelyn Whipple and Edward Bader, all occupants of the car when it upset suffered bruises and abrasions.

The young people were driving along South Main Street, near the end of the paving. Miss Briant swerved the car to pass a wagon and in turning out one wheel struck the curb. The car careened across the street, striking the opposite curb and then overturned.

Miss Briant was carried to Josephine Hospital, where she received medical attention, and then was able to return to her home. None of the others required medical attention.

The car was damaged slightly, but after being righted was driven home by its owner.

Plane To Re-Enact Oregon Trail Trek of 100 Years Ago

Flier Will Follow Route of First Wagon Train

ST. LOUIS, March 25.—(AP)—History will backtrack a century this year to commemorate the first westward trek of the covered wagon, an event it almost forgot to record.

Heralded now as an epoch in transportation comparable with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's dash by air toward the rising sun nearly 100 years later, the movement of the first covered wagon train toward the setting sun on April 10, 1820, was at that time an unsung deed of heroism.

A covered wagon contention this year will be the first celebration of that stirring adventure. It is sponsored by the Oregon Trail Memorial association and sanctioned by President Hoover in a proclamation.

Just as the first wagon train crept out of St. Louis, then a fur-trading post, from the vicinity of Front street on the Mississippi river, plans are being laid for a reconstructed similar train to start from that same place this April 10.

A few miles out on "the train" the wagons, according to the tentative program, will yield to the new era

Work Orders Put Through by State Highway Department

FINISHES PROGRAM

Chamber of Commerce Committees Work with Rural County Points

State highway construction on second and third class projects will be resumed in Hempstead and adjoining counties the first week in April, The Star learned today.

Equipment and materials will be moved in place for three road jobs long sought by Hope and Hempstead county points. The State Highway Department, The Star learned, has issued orders and other authorizations on the following projects "efficiently at once":

1. Blevins to McCaskill, and beyond, and probably Nashville, Mo., meeting the Howard county road at Prescott, on the lateral road to Northern Hempstead county.

2. Hope to Blevins, connecting Hempstead county points with direct highway, and eliminating the necessity of driving around by Prescott.

3. Hope to Rosston, on the projected Hope-Camden road. Although the Hope-Blevins and Hope-Rosston roads have been on the program of Hope Chamber of Commerce for some time, little was known as to the road plans of Blevins and other north-county communities.

In an effort to ascertain these plans and work out a harmonious county-wide program which would guide the State Highway Department in locating roads here, the highway committee of Hope Chamber of Commerce, W. S. Atkins, chairman, and C. A. Graves and W. V. Foster, State Highway committee, to visit Blevins and discover what common ground all communities could meet for the state program. This committee, Thurman Rhodes, Alex. H. Washburn and Roy Anderson, went to Blevins in February, accompanied by B. R. Hamm and E. P. Young, and met north county leaders at a conference there. Blevins, McCaskill, Belton and other points along the Prescott & Northwestern Railroad were represented by M. L. Nelson, H. M. Stephens, I. W. Hendrix and a dozen other merchants, produce men and landowners.

Blevins Roads Okeed The north county points and Hope agreed to endorse as one project the Blevins road west to Nashville, and the Blevins road south to Hope. Key highway enthusiasts were named by the north county men to represent their section a week later at a conference in Hope between the main

New High School Needed

THE same energy which enabled Hope to build and pay for a city hall without any kind of special tax, ought to provide her with a modern high school building.

As told in The Star yesterday, Garland High School was built in 1906. It was long ago outgrown by the student population. And for the last several years the building has presented a most shabby and unprogressive appearance.

The municipal school district is short of money. It fell a year behind its budget several seasons ago, and while economical management enables it to keep expenses within its revenues today, it has no reserve whatsoever to finance a new building.

It is our impression that the city of Hope, considering the municipal government, the school district, paving and sewerage improvements, is relatively free from indebtedness.

A new high school building is worth going in debt for.

The fact will not be disputed when a local citizen has to tell a visitor that owing to the lack of facilities in the present building, Hope High School has no regular manual training department, no home economics course, no gymnasium, and no science laboratory.

All this is an integral part of any modern public school, and as Hope learns she doesn't have it, she will plan to make whatever outlay is necessary to obtain it.

"No Monopoly in Foods"

UNDER the above title, Armour & Co., issued a pamphlet to the newspapers March 21, and while it is frankly a statement in behalf of the meat packers, it develops some interesting facts which may be taken for what they are worth.

"Some years ago," the pamphlet declares, "there was a notion that this country was in danger of a food monopoly. The fundamental changes which have occurred in the last ten years, however, have completely dispelled this idea."

"It is authoritatively estimated that there are some 10,000 chain store organizations in the country controlling in all 100,000 stores."

"Powerful co-operative organizations of retail grocers and wholesalers have also come into existence in recent years. Competent authorities estimate that at least 50,000 retail grocers are now affiliated in some form with a co-operative buying organization, or wholesale grocery concern."

"A report of the Federal Trade Commission addressed to the senate in 1925 when wholesalers were less numerous than now, stated, 'It is perhaps true that the wholesale grocery business is too large and too widely distributed ever to be threatened with monopoly conditions.'"

The most interesting observation above is the statement that independent grocers acting co-operatively already have 50 per cent as many units as all the chain stores put together. Against the 100,000 chain stores, there are 50,000 co-operative independents.

This bears out the generally accepted theory that any new idea, once it has been introduced in business and proven to be good, is at once picked up and used by the general trade. In the grocery business it appears that the answer to chain buying power is co-operative buying power.

Two Juries

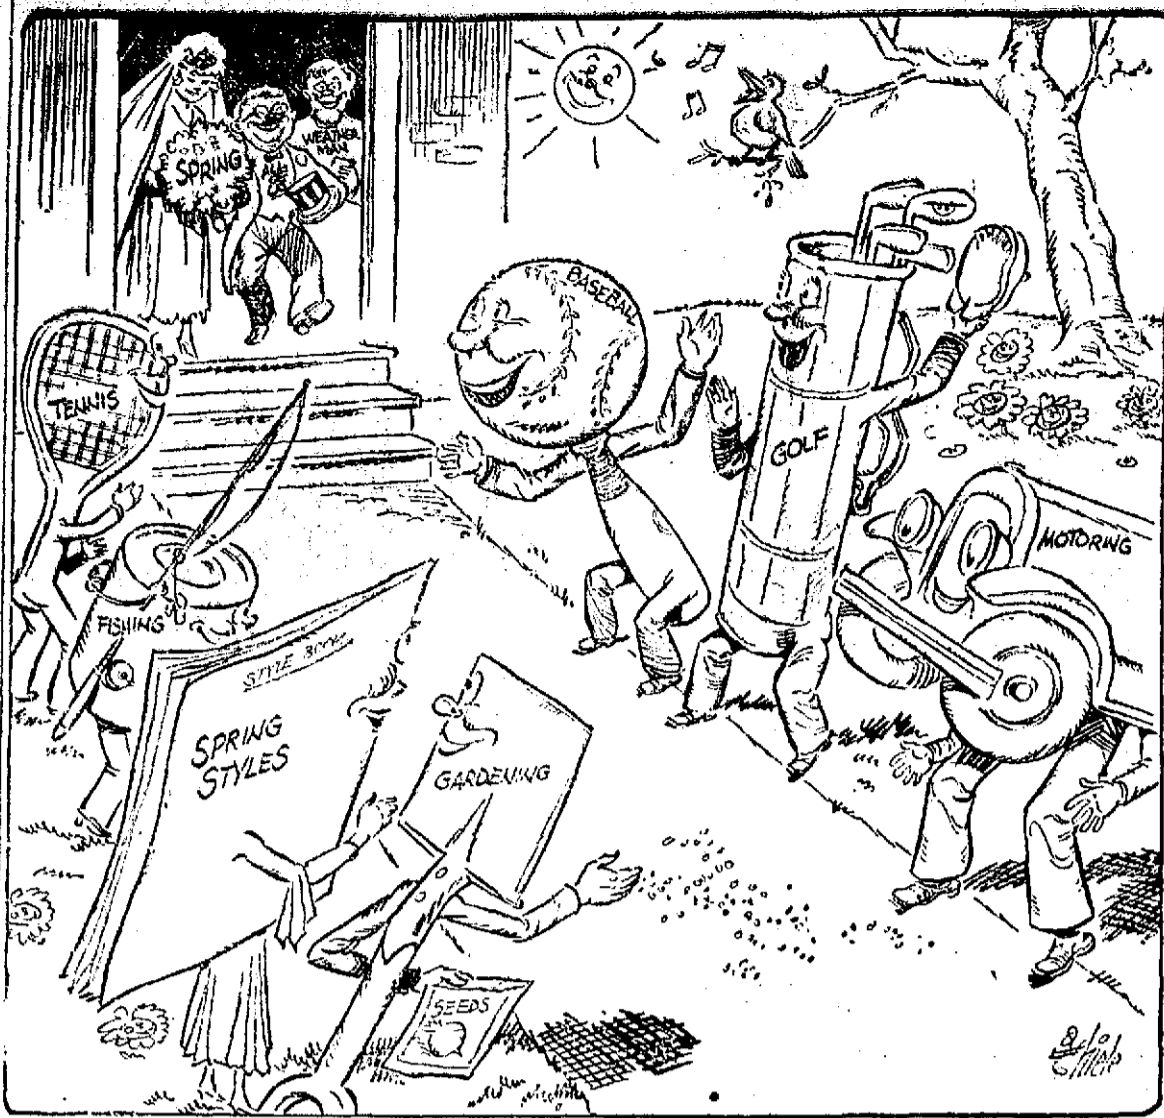

THE vagaries of court trials have seldom had a clearer illustration than one finds in the verdict which freed Doheny the oil magnate, on a charge of bribing former Secretary Albert B. Fall after hearing practically the same evidence from the same witnesses which another jury heard to convict Secretary Fall in the same bribery case.

One thing must be evident to the most illogical mind. Either the jury which tried Doheny committed an error in exonerating him or the jury which tried Fall erred in convicting him. If Doheny did not bribe Fall, then the Secretary was not bribed.

That there was something unsavory in the transactions surrounding the leasing of Naval oil reserves will hardly permit of argument. Convicting men of wealth and position is a difficult matter but both Fall and Doheny have paid a heavy price for their connection with the affair, even though they have not paid it with prison sentences.

Fall, in particular, has paid with the best and most fruitful years of his life. Today he is an aged and broken man. His health is gone and his family must rest under a cloud forever. Doheny, too, has tasted of the cup of bitterness. Even the acquittal at the hands of a jury cannot restore that which the accusation has taken from him. —Jonesboro Tribune

Here Comes the Bride!

WASHINGTON

ALL the peaceful and friendly feelings which may develop between nations do not come out of international conferences on arms, and at this time when prospects for beneficial results from the London conference seem rather dismal, the State Department is taking some encouragement from that fact.

It's a long way back to the earthquake and fire in Tokyo and Yokohama in 1923, but Japan, although her delegates are making large naval demands in London, hasn't forgotten it. The State Department has received word that four Japanese young women have been selected to go to America and express the Nipponese thanks for American relief efforts at the time of the earthquake.

The girls were picked by a committee which includes Prince Tokugawa, president of the House of Peers, the mayors of Tokyo and Yokohama and the dowager marchioness Nabeshima. They will arrive in San Francisco April 2.

These "ambassadors" are the Misses Kimiko Ashino, Yoshiko Matsudaira, Yoshiko Sato and Sumiko Tokuda, all members of representative Japanese families.

Clad in the picturesque kimono and zori (sandals) the four will tour the leading cities of America, visiting schools, newspapers and social organizations where they will voice the gratitude of Japan.

for America's generosity during the great earthquake.

All four "ambassadors" are members of prominent families.

The Jiji Shimpou, one of Japan's leading newspapers, which organized this unusual visit, recently filled its whole editorial column with a review of the outpouring of American relief at the time of the earthquake, giving credit to other nations for their help but pointing out that the large scale and promptitude of American relief was the most important of all and "will remain forever inscribed on the hearts of the Japanese people."

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER of Kansas, who is the publisher of the Kansas Weekly and other Capper publications, likes to tell a story of an experience encountered once when he was touring through Japan.

He was touring through Japan at the time of the earthquake, and he reported that his man was right, anxious to have him visit their home because she had named her last offspring Arthur Capper.

Senator Capper beamed over that and agreed to go.

"He traveled quite a distance to get there and was shown the infant, which turned out to be somewhat underweight and quite unlikely to win any baby contests. The senator allowed that he felt gratified and honored to have had his name given to the child."

Seek Franco-Italian Compromise for Five-Power Agreement

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald met together today with the idea in mind to try to find some Franco-Italian compromise which would bring back Andre Tardieu to London.

Tardieu is said to have told authorities he would return to the conference when something worth while was brought up to consider. Col. Stimson was accompanied by Ambassador Morrow and Senator Robinson.

The American spokesman told the Associated Press that the conference had not abandoned hope for a five power agreement.

Friends Help Trio to Serve Liquor Terms

LEBANON, Ill., March 24.—Three young men here, fined for inebriety to freely, told the judge they had no money and would have to work out their fines. At this juncture three friends walked into the courtroom and volunteered to join the imbibers if the judge would cut the time in half.

They explained that the lawbreakers were out of work but were expecting to be called back to their jobs at any time, and would probably lose their jobs if they were unable to report when called. The judge agreed and put the six to work cleaning the streets.

COTTON--

We agree with Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, who said recently:

"Cotton is a mighty poor living crop, but a good cash crop. Make your cotton your clear surplus by producing food for the family, feed for the live stock, and your own milk, meat and eggs."

Make good cows, sows and hens help feed the family and the surplus help pay the family grocery bill. It is good business whether cotton remains above 15c or whether it goes down to 12c or below.

As a means of safety, plan to have something else to sell besides cotton.

Take care of these other needs and the cotton will take care of itself."

"They Learned About Women" Has Swift Plot and Lifting Eunes

With ten new song hits, Van and Schenck make a tunefully triumphant debut as motion picture stars in "They Learned About Women," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new musical sound feature, which plays today at the Saenger Theatre.

The famous singing stars bring a bit of the life they have known as vaudeville performers and baseball players into the picture, enacting the roles of ball players who drift onto the stage to fill in the gap between seasons on the diamond.

In their song numbers, written especially for them by Milton Ager and Jack Yellen, Van and Schenck have the theme of the film incorporated, the new hits including "Does My Baby," "Ain't You Baby," "Hole in Madness," "He's That Kind of a Pal," "Ten Little Mamas," "Partners," "I'm an Old-Fashioned Guy" and "Dougherty."

Not to be outdone, little Bessie
Love, who plays the leading feminine role, divulges a song number of her very own, "I've Got a Man of My Own," cleverly rendered and appropriately titled.

Jack Conway and Sam Wood directed the picture from an original story by A. P. Younger, a swiftly moving plot that is climaxed in a thrilling World Series sequence. Sarah Y. Mason adapted the story for the screen and "Bugs" Bear, noted humorist, wrote the slangy baseball dialogue.

"Rheumatic" Troubles - Two of The Most Re-

TANLAC WITHOUT

NURSE

Read this letter. It is one sent to us voluntarily by a practising nurse, Mrs. B. Piccord, whose advice anyone suffering from stomach troubles could well take.

She writes, "In 10 years active nursing have found Tanlac without equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles and I can certainly promise people wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach troubles myself for years, could eat scarcely anything without suffering, never any appetite, always nervous and rundown. But as soon as I began Tanlac, it started to build me right up. All stomach troubles were routed and never any pain, distress or gases since. Now I eat everything with perfect safety and weigh more now than I did 15 years." Tanlac is not a patent medicine. Every drop is real medicine designed to do its part in making you well. Accept no substitute.

IN 21 DAYS KIDNEY,
BLADDER, STOMACH
TROUBLES END

Better by far than all the glowing promises in the world is the actual proof of what Tanlac has done for others who once suffered like you.

Mr. Charles J. Stultz, a carpenter, suffered night and day for years until Tanlac put an end to it. He writes, "I suffered from a run-down condition for 3 or 4 years. I also had kidney and bladder troubles as well as indigestion and pains in stomach and side. My sleep was disturbed 4 or 5 times a night. I saw Tanlac advertised and decided to try it. I had tried other things which failed but after I had taken 3 bottles of Tanlac my kidney, bladder troubles and pains disappeared and never returned." Tanlac gives results and gives them quickly, for every ingredient in it is a strong potent medicine. Get a bottle today at your drug-

Real Cigarette Pleasure

WHY BE SATISFIED with less smoking pleasure when for the same price you can have the luxury of Camels?

Camels stand alone. If you merely want to puff, anything will do. But if you want to know the true delight of smoking—to enjoy the mild, mellow fragrance of superbly blended Domestic and Turkish tobaccos, brought to perfection by the most scientific methods of manufacture but with none of the delicacy of its natural goodness lost or spoiled by over-treatment—then Camel is the cigarette for you.

You'll find in Camels all the exquisite enjoyment that can be

College Stars Join Pros

Baseball batty-hoo is taking firm hold. It's everywhere in the south. It is grabbing choice spots in northern newspapers. In these places, however, basketball and hockey talk still lingers.

I am interested in a recent bit of news—the decision of four great university basketball players to enter the professional game, now that their collegiate careers have ended. They are the two Charles Murphys, "Stretch" of Purdue, and "Fence" of Loyola, Bud Foster, the Wisconsin captain, and Branch McCracken, Indiana leader who set a new individual scoring record for the Big Ten this season.

The Murphys have joined up with the Chicago Bruins, where they will team with those famous old Hickey and Holman, two of the greatest players in basketball. Foster attached his name to an Oklahoma, Wis., team's contract. While McCracken accepted a Fort Wayne bid.

College men, reaching heights in football and basketball, seldom gain stardom in pro cage circles. There is something lacking in their skill, apparently. Some make the grade, but only after they have mastered intricacies of the team play and passing employed by professionals. Chadwick, Fort Wayne center, was a great scorer at Wabash, but against professional teams he seldom breaks into the scoring column. Vic Hanson, one of Syracuse's greatest performers, tried professional basketball and gave it up as a failure.

Pete Barry, Cleveland Rosenbloom's star and veteran of 17 years of professional basketball, once told me that college players fall in the pro ranks because they are not trained to adapt themselves to conditions. They are fed the ball to score the points on their college teams. Pete said. In the pro game, they are but one-fifth of a five-man machine and must be able to pass, guard and shoot baskets with equal skill.

Hockey Heroism

HOCKEY players seldom go in for heroics, but only recently I heard a story of unusual grit. Lionel Conacher, hurly New York Americans' manager, cast in the hero role.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

EDDIE MUNSON, veteran timekeeper at boxing contests, has suffered a nervous breakdown. Munson has timed most of the important matches since restoration of legalized boxing under the amended Walker law in New York.

Replied to a reporter's question with regard to how many players he would carry. Bill McKeechie, Braves' manager, remarked sadly, "The rules say I have to have nine, but I wish you'd tell me where in the world they find fellows like that."

"Like that," was accompanied by a sweep of the arm that took in the entire Braves' training camp. Francis Henley, young catcher with the Giants, is an old-fashioned ball player, thinks John McGraw. "A young fellow with an old head on his shoulders who isn't afraid of anything" is the way John describes him.

It was in the waning minutes of the Americans-Chicago Bruins game. Conacher threw himself across the ice to fend off a late counter-attack by the Bruins. The razor-edged skate of a Chicago player caught his right leg, mid-way between thigh and knee. There was a ripping sound as clothing and flesh were torn. Conacher continued in the game, but wherever he skated, a trail of blood followed.

A physician looked at Conacher's torn leg five minutes later in the dressing room. He mumbled something about a "ragged wound" and "I have seen no worse." The wound was eight inches long and was closed, only after 14 stitches had been made in it.

Right along with the story of Conacher's grit is one about "Ching" Johnson, rugged defense star of the New York Rangers. Johnson, you remember, had his jaw broken in three places only a short time ago. I understand now that he will participate in the National League playoffs shortly, wearing a special leather protection about his chin.

Yes, the hockey boys like their game.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

SPORT SLANTS

ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS, SPORTS EDITOR

The agitation over the so-called "lively ball" may as well curl up and die.

From Palm Beach to Catalina Island the whack of the base-hit has been echoing as the big league baseball clubs have swung into the spring training campaign. The boys are taking toe-holds for every swing at the plate, rookies as well as veterans. The Detroit Tigers piked up a promising Bronx youngster and first baseman, just out of high school, in Henry Greenberg. Henry came up to bat in the first exhibition game of the season at Tampa, after Dale Alexander had put two out of the park, and slammed the ball over the left field fence. . . . Over at Orlando, the longest drive registered in the first week of Cincinnati's practice was not made by Harry Heilmann or Bob Meusel but by Tony Cucinello, the recruit infielder from Columbus. Cucinello put the ball over the left field fence, which measures 410 feet from the plate.

With the youngsters hitting at such a clip, their is not much chance or inclination to restore the ancient art of hunting or choke-hitting. It fact if there is a choke-hitter left since Dave Bancroft, Heinie Groh and Joe Dugan passed out of the active major league list, he can scarcely be noticed. Even an old war-horse like Rabbit Maranville is swinging from the heels.

Defensive skill is not being overlooked but the records most closely scanned, so far as the rookies are concerned, are their batting performances. Bill McKeechie, trying to do something about the plight of the Boston Braves, is willing to sacrifice considerable defensive ability for the unhampered wallop to distant places. The St. Louis Browns willingly would trade some fast footwork for a heater punch.

All four of the second-division National League teams last year, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Boston, as a matter of fact, have such an embarrassment of hitting riches that one or two potential 400 clouters may be forced to spend considerable time on the bench.

In the American League, Detroit and New York pack the hardest wallop outside of the World's champion Athletics. . . .

Montana State's Bobcats found the

A's Tamed Yanks But Didn't Silence These Sluggers

This great slugging quartet will again be menacing American league pitching this season. It's the best the Yankees have for their 1936 pennant bid. Will it be enough to stop the Athletics?

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—A slugging quartet that in that last three seasons collected 2,257 base hits of assorted sizes again is the Yankee's main threat in their new try for American league supremacy.

There it is—Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri and Combs! Two thousand, two hundred and fifty-seven hits, 896 of them extra base blows, and 1,486 runs in three seasons!

Budding pennant contenders may laugh off the rather mild Yankee threat at pitching dominance, but they can't laugh off their batting. Statistics on what Ruth and his fellow maulers did it 1927, 1928 and 1929 won't win any game in 1936. They do provide, though, some dependable basis for the dope which places Colonel Jake Ruppert's club next to the annihilating A's in the pre-season rating.

Both Detroit and the Athletics sent better sluggers to the batting front in 1929. The Tigers had Pothergill, Heilmann, Alexander and Gehrig to set the pace for both the Yankees and the MacKens. And the A's still have Simmons, Fox, Cochrane, Miller and Dykes to pile up game-winning hits and runs.

Yet no team in either league now has a quartet, such as the Yankees when it comes to consistency in slugging over a three-year period. Here is what Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri and Combs have done:

This quartet has a combined batting average of .356 for the three years and had plenty to say about the 229 ball games the Yankees won during that period.

Both Detroit and the Athletics sent better sluggers to the batting front in 1929. The Tigers had Pothergill, Heilmann, Alexander and Gehrig to set the pace for both the Yankees and the MacKens. And the A's still have Simmons, Fox, Cochrane, Miller and Dykes to pile up game-winning hits and runs.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer

Even at this distance, the roar from around Los Angeles can be heard as a result of the National Rowing Association's selection of Lake Merced, near San Francisco, for the Olympic Regatta of 1932. The Southern California city has made elaborate plans for the Olympics, with a substantial cash investment involved, and will yield no item on the program without a hand-to-hand battle.

Walter Eckersall, Famous As Athlete, Writer, Dies Suddenly

CHICAGO, March 24.—Walter Her-fert Eckersall, three times All-American football player and for more than 20 years nationally known athletic authority, died suddenly at the Chicago Athletic Association. Death was due to a heart attack.

Since last fall when he was the victim of influenza, Eckersall failed to regain his accustomed vigor, although to friends he insisted he was in "tip top" condition. There was no suspicion of immediate danger although influenza had left a weakened heart. For several days he had not been feeling well and was resting in his room when C. W. Dunkley, a friend, called for a visit. He found Eckersall moaning and death followed within a few minutes.

Another factor in his failing health which only his close friends may estimate, was grief over the death of his mother a year ago last fall when Eckersall was in New York as an official for the Army-Navy Game football game. There always had been a strong bond of affection and after the death of his father, he made a home for her where he lived until her death.

Kansas Football Teams to Play Game March 28

LAWRENCE, Kas., March 25.—(AP)—While other athletes are out on the cinder paths and diamonds, the Haskell Indians and the Pittsburg, Kas., Teachers' college will meet in a practice football game here March 28.

Rule innovations suggested by Glenn "Pop" Warner of Leland Stanford University will be used, and at the start of the third period the ball will be put in play at the point where it was downed when the second period ended. Each first down will count one point. Warner is to be a guest at the game and at a banquet following.

William H. "Lone Star" Dietz, part Indian and a friend of Warner, is coach at Haskell. Edward Howell, former star at the University of Nebraska, coaches the Teachers.

The proposed experiment is to be made under the auspices of the General Theatre Equipment corporation and the Jenkins Television corporation. It is hoped to produce a recognizable picture with sound accompaniment. A new type of screen is to be used for the picture.

Murder Backstairs

©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC. BY ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON", ETC.

"Guess who?" a disguised voice demanded from behind him.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DORIS MATTHEWS, a lady, is murdered Friday night in a summerhouse on the Berkeley estate by a blow with a heavy perfume flask given by SEYMOUR BERKELEY, engaged to CLORINDA BERKELEY. The body, rock-weighted and tied with Clorinda's scarf, is taken from the lake Saturday morning by DETECTIVE DUNDEE, who summons CAPTAIN STRAWN.

Mrs. George Berkeley, having quarreled Friday night with her husband over his opposition to Clorinda's engagement, and Friday afternoon with Doris and EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur and judge's clerk, who has caught SEYMOUR BERKELEY making love to the unwilling maid, becomes much involved in the murder by the strange plot of Doris, months found on Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom mirror, proving the maid had been there late and that a struggle had taken place. Dick's story is that he spent the night in the tower room vainly awaiting Doris.

Clorinda Berkeley, not in love with Crosby, introduced by MRS. LAMBERT, social secretary, admits having been in summerhouse about midnight after crime was committed, which she says accounts for perfume on her slipper and blood on evening cape. Perfume flask had been placed in Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom by WICKETT, butler. Clorinda describes witnessing the crime. SEYMOUR BERKELEY, who sprinkled everyone Friday evening with perfume from murder flask, says she saw Doris crying and talking with Crosby after 11. Arnold says he left note for Doris breaking appointment in summerhouse and supplies alibi for murder hour, but says he saw man leaving grounds at midnight. Strawn orders police to round up JOHN MAXWELL, former auditor of Clorinda Berkeley.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

FIFTEEN minutes later Captain Strawn and Bonnie Dundee were strolling together from the garage toward the rear of the big stone house.

"What do you think, boy?" Strawn asked, scowling thoughtfully.

"I think Arnold has told the truth, Chief. Aside from the fact that there isn't a trace of that confounded perfume on the uniform he was wearing yesterday, or on his shoes."

"What about that half-empty bottle of cleaning fluid on his dresser?"

"I've got a bottle of the same stuff on my chiffonier at the Rhodes House," Dundee grinned. "Pretty good to remove spots, and a chauffeur must need it more than I do."

"And pretty good to cover up the stink of perfume, maybe," Strawn growled. "Hey, what the devil?"

"Guess who?" a disguised voice demanded hoarsely from behind Strawn, as two small brown hands were clapped over his eyes.

"The Post again!" Strawn decried, flinging up a big hand to seize her arm. "Where did you come from? Didn't I give orders for all of you to stay in the house?"

"I've been shadowing you!" Gigi panted, laughing. "I trailed you to the garage, snuck up the stairs after you and saw you quail with fear when Arnold said he'd kill you if you said one more word about poor Doris stealing Abbie's perfume. And I must say I didn't blame him a bit! Of all the silly theories you've been reeling off to-day, that takes the prize!"

"I'll have to put you in jail to keep you from butting in," Strawn threatened.

"Listen, Captain Strawn!" Gigi commanded, suddenly very serious. "Anyone who knew Doris Matthews could tell you she wasn't the kind of girl who could have stolen a pin, much less a silly flask of perfume to help her sweetie build a filling station! And as I've told you before, she'd have laughed in Dick's face if he'd asked her to marry him, and then she'd have slapped him if he'd tried to kiss her. As a suspect, Eugene Arnold is a wash-out."

"Without another word she tore her arm out of Strawn's grip and fled to the house."

"Funny kid!" Dundee smiled. "But she's right, Chief. This is the very devil of a case and jumping to foolish conclusions will get us nowhere. . . . By the way, what about John Maxwell? Something Arnold said seemed to ring a bell in your brain. Do you know Maxwell?"

"Slightly," Strawn replied. "Son of one of Hamilton's former police chiefs. Old man's dead now. The boy's had pretty rough sledding; had to step in and be a daddy to his younger brothers and a sister. Paid his way through college and law school, after his mother married again. Just passed his bar examinations, according to the papers. . . . Ran into him on the street yesterday; told me he was going into the district attorney's office and try to work up into assistant district attorney."

"AND he was wearing a light gray topcoat and a gray felt hat when you saw him?" Dundee suggested.

"Right! But he was—probably a thousand other young men on the streets of Hamilton. The point is, he's big and tall, and he was an all-round athletic star in college. If Arnold's telling the truth, it looks pretty certain that it was John Maxwell who strolled around these grounds with Clorinda Berkeley last night. If so, I want to know what he saw! That Berkeley girl has told so many lies—"

"Probably to keep John Maxwell's name out of the mess," Dundee pointed out. "Women in love do some mighty queer things. . . ."

"DORIS's room next," Strawn declared. "I'm getting pretty anxious to have a squint at that letter she was writing to her sister in England."

"So am I," Dundee agreed, as they ascended the back stairs.

"Anybody try to get into the girl's room, Wilkins?" Captain Strawn asked the detective on duty in the third floor hall.

"No, sir. All quiet up here. Haven't seen a soul except a young man who said he was Dick Berkeley. He's in his own room up front now."

DUNDEE opened the unlocked door and stepped aside, to let his chief precede him into the murdered girl's room. It was very small, not much bigger than a closet, but Doris Matthews had succeeded in making it homelike, even pretty.

Only the carpet on the floor was out of keeping with the immaculate daintiness of the little cubicle. It was a worn square of gaudily flowered carpeting.

In the closet they found four pretty but inexpensive silk dresses, a very English-looking, jaunty little tweed suit, and a lightweight fall coat. On a shelf was a hat box, containing a saucy green beret and a close-fitting cloche of silky, dark-blue felt.

"Good taste in clothes," Dundee said softly, almost as if he were speaking to the girl who could never flush with delight at another compliment; but his chief had turned to the table and was gathering up the closely written sheets of an unfinished letter.

"This ought to tell us a lot about Doris Matthews," Strawn said. "And—by George, it does!"

The iron-gray head and the black one bent together over the last letter Doris Matthews would ever write.

"Darling Kathy"—it began—"I have been too miserable, too busy and too happy to write you as often as I should. I've destroyed your last letter, as you asked me to, but I think I can remember most of the questions, and I'll try to answer them."

"First: Yes, I've been terribly homesick for England and for you, but until—but that will come later."

"Second: Wickett is well, and the same old darling. I don't know how I could have lived the first two weeks here, if he hadn't been here, too, to buck me up. He sends you his love, and offers you my job when—but that comes later, too! I'm saving it up for a grand climax."

"Third: Mrs. Berkeley is as impossible and tyrannical as ever. Poor thing! I can't blame her much because of what I wrote you last time, and because she simply isn't a lady, and hasn't the ghost of an idea how real genteel folk treat their servants."

STRAWN chuckled. "Wonder how 'Abbie' is going to like that, when the papers get hold of this letter?" They went on reading.

"For instance, she slapped my face this evening when I was dressing her for dinner. I probably shouldn't have said what I did, but I simply couldn't hold my tongue any longer. Of course it had to do with what I wrote you about before, and I spoke for Gigi's sake. I've told you how adorable the child is, how crazy I am about her. We are the best of friends, and Miss Clorinda is still kindness itself to me. She will make a very great lady some day."

"And now for some real news for you, darling! Guess who arrived this afternoon. Mr. Crosby! I haven't seen him yet, but of course I shall. I dread it, in a way, because—Oh, well, you know all about that! He is engaged to Clorinda Berkeley. It's to be announced at a big party tomorrow night, and the old warhorse is simply on her head with excitement. Think that, with Mrs. Lambert's help, she's going to conquer Hamilton society, then march triumphantly upon New York, Paris and London!"

"Mrs. Lambert is the same sweet, considerate 'great lady' she always was. If only she were the mistress! But about Mr. Crosby. I can't see how he can possibly marry 'nglin' so soon. It seems like only yesterday that that awful inquest—I, for one, will never forget Miss Phyllis, the loveliest, sweetest, kindest person that ever lived. I shall never love any other mistress as I loved and adored her. If only—But it's too late now. My darling lady is in her grave, the 'case' is closed forever, and maybe I did then what she would have wished me to do. At any rate, I thought so then. But I should die happy if I could live to see the one who broke her heart and killed her—yes, actually killed her!—suffer as she suffered. I know the law is powerless in a case like this, but there are other ways!"

The two detectives lifted their eyes from the underlined words and stared at each other, awestricken.

"And they say 'dead men tell no tales,'" Dundee said softly.

"Well, let's see if she gets down to brass tacks," Strawn suggested impatiently. "There's a couple more pages."

Lady Who Suffered From Pains and Dizziness Tells of Taking Cardui.

New York, N. Y.—After a severe illness, several years ago, Mrs. M. E. Madges, Fifty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, this city, was left in a condition in which she was subject to "quite a bit of pain and dizziness," she says.

"This condition lingered for some time," writes Mrs. Madges, "until someone suggested I try Cardui. I don't remember who, but to her I am very grateful, for I had not taken half a bottle until I knew it was helping me, for the dizziness disappeared."

"Since that time I have taken about two bottles of Cardui each year, and this has helped to keep me in splendid condition."

"I recommend Cardui to people with whom I come in contact and they seem very grateful. It is a splendid builder. I don't know anything that can take the place of Cardui. I cannot say too much for the best of all tonics—to my way of thinking."

Cardui is a purely vegetable re-constructive medicine.

Movable School Visits Hempstead

Giving Demonstrations in the Best Farm Practices

The Movable Demonstration School for Negroes spent three days in Hempstead County, giving demonstrations in the best farm practices, as advocated by Agricultural Extension Service of this state.

The demonstration school is in charge of C. Haraway, Agriculture Agent, and it traverses the entire state, he tells us. The truck is equipped with farm level for terracing and draining, spraying and pruning outfits for giving demonstrations in caring for the home orchards, vaccination instruments, fertilizer samples, carpenter tools for making door-sills and screens, and a motion picture machine.

It is of interest to know that this same truck carries for the women and girls, cooking utensils, samples or supplies for giving demonstrations in cookery, picture framing material, steam pressure cooker, rug making instruments and many other for teaching home economics to better rural life conditions.

March 21, this school set up at McNab and constructed a terracing demonstration on the farm of Fred Turner, which was quite interesting. Saturday the school visited Powers and spent the time demonstration of fertilizers, pastures, and orchards. Monday at Washington, where he tells the reporter that he had an attendance of 300 men, women, boys and girls. He put the following demonstrations on in this community: Fertilizers, preparing the seed bed, caring for the home orchard, planning the home garden, vaccination of hogs and planting the best seed etc.

The attendance for the three days in this numbered 700 people he actually the demonstrations and he says he thinks that he has changed some of the old methods of farming in this county.

building. Two locations, one at the crossroads about a mile and a quarter this side of Patmos, and the other a quarter of a mile closer to Patmos, were said to have been considered; but owing to a disagreement among the representatives of the various districts, no final selection ever was announced, and court action followed.

It is reported that when the consolidation was effected, taxpayers in the Patmos district and districts Nos. 3, 8 and 15 were under the impression that they would elect six new directors to take immediate control of the consolidated district. But an Arkansas Supreme Court decision in a similar case coming up from Nevada county held that the duly qualified directors at the time of the consolidation should serve until the next school election. Left in that status, the present board would include 23 directors—gathered from all four of the old districts.

Miss Phillips was reared in Washington, but had been a resident of New Orleans for more than 40 years. She was an aunt of Crit Stuart, deputy sheriff. She is survived by her sister, Miss Chraline Phillips, also of New Orleans.

Gloria Caruso, young daughter of the famed tenor, is said to have inherited her father's musical talent to a marked degree.

Good Showing of Oil in Camden Well Seen

CAMDEN, Ark., March 25.—Drill stem tests were made on the McDonald Brothers Wilson No. 2 well in the McDonald field, 14 miles southwest of Camden. A good showing of oil was found following the core tests, and casing will be set soon as the drill stem tests are completed.

The well is in the northwest corner of the southwest corner of section 25, township 15 south, range 18 west. It is down to approximately 2200 feet. It was in this section that the producers were brought in by the McDonald brothers last year. The field is a proven one, and the McDonalds plan to improve it further.

"The Cock Eyed World" at New Grand Thursday

An idea of the number of people used in the production of "The Cock Eyed World," all talking Fox Movietone production, directed by Raul Walsh, was gleaned from the work sheets in the office of David Todd, assistant casting director of Fox Films. In the scenes taken at Mare Island Navy Yard just outside of San Francisco, and aboard the U. S. Transport Henderson, 1,200 real marines are seen together with two navy bands, ship's officers, crews, etc., to the number of 800.

In the Russian, tropical and New York scenes, 400 former marines were used for many days. In the Russian sequences Walsh used 125 real Russians who are heard speaking in their native tongue, and 150 Russian men, women, and children recruited from the local Russian colony in Hollywood and Los Angeles who might be classified as Russo-Americans.

In the tropical scenes, Walsh used 175 real Spanish and Mexican types and in the Coney Island scenes, 150 dancing couples hand picked from Los Angeles dance halls were used. In the night scenes at Coney, 350 people were used as atmosphere.

The cast, headed by Victor McLaglen with Edmund Lowe and Lily Damita, had more than forty in support, each heard, as well as seen. It opens Thursday at the New Grand theatre for two days.

Likewise, seven distinct musical organizations aggregating close to 150 musicians and including two navy bands, a Spanish marimba band, Jose Arica serenaders, a Russian Balalaika orchestra, a marine string orchestra and a hot jazz orchestra at Coney Island, play the music of all nations in logical sequences.

In this meeting, at which the north county roads were again agreed on, the following men were chosen as a north county committee to work with Hope Chamber of Commerce: J. D. Eley, Belton; Bert Scott, McCaskill; and M. L. Nelson, Blevins.

The Blevins-west road, No. 24, has already been located, and bids were once advertised for, but rejected. This road will be constructed at once. In the committee meetings it was specifically agreed that no routings or highways would be discussed, but would be left up to the state engineers. There was no discussion of the possible route of the Hope-Blevins road, which has still to be located, but the committees agreed to accept any direct route which the State Highway Department might lay out between the two communities.

Road to Camden
Construction on the unfinished part of the Hope-Rosston highway will complete a project which has been under way for the last two years, and which makes Hope accessible to points in lower Nevada county. The Hope-Rosston road is gravled to Centerville, on the Hempstead-Nevada county line seven miles from here, and graded about eleven miles farther into Nevada county. The grade will be completed into Rosston and the entire stretch gravled this year. This road serves the Rosston and Bodeau territories, and will ultimately reach Camden, which has been working with Hope to get a road across southern Nevada county. The only road now traversing the lower end of that county is the north-and-south highway, No. 19, from Prescott to Wald and Magnolia.

Bud Keeps 'em Working

BUD KELLY, expert telephone repairman and "trouble shooter", restringing a storm-snapped wire on the new "two-wire" rural telephone lines three miles east of Mexico, Mo. Told of the break by the Mexico operator, and locating it by means of testing instruments, Bud hopped in his roadster and within fifty minutes had the line spliced and working.

An hour later he was fixing a bad box two miles the other side of town!

Trouble like this doesn't happen very often, but when it does Bud is ready to remedy it. That's his job.

Your new telephone line will be kept up by telephone men instead of by the farmers on the line.
